

Departmental Presentations by Students of English Literature

The Department of English organized a series of student presentations as part of their academic curriculum. The purpose of these presentations was to provide students with an opportunity to showcase their research, critical thinking, and presentation skills while delving into various aspects of literature. The event aimed to foster a deeper understanding of literary works and encourage scholarly discussions within the academic community.

The presentations were held over the course of two days, 6th Nov. and 7th Nov. 2017 in the conference hall.

The event featured students from various semesters and academic levels of undergraduate English Literature as their major. Each participant was required to select a specific literary topic or theme and prepare a comprehensive presentation.

Presentation Topics and Themes: The presentations covered a wide range of topics, spanning different literary periods, genres, and authors. Some of the notable presentation topics included:

The presentations were evaluated by a panel of faculty members specializing in English Literature. The assessment criteria included the clarity of presentation, depth of research, coherence of arguments, and ability to engage the audience. The students demonstrated a commendable level of preparation, and their enthusiasm for the subject matter was evident throughout the sessions.

The Departmental Presentations by the students of English Literature proved to be a stimulating and enlightening event. The presentations not only enhanced their academic skills but also encouraged intellectual discourse and inspired fellow students to explore the vast world of English literature further.